

Home>Find a legal professional>Types of legal professions

Types of legal professions

Italy

This page provides you with an overview of the legal professions in Italy.

Legal professions – introduction

The main legal professions in Italy are: professional judges (magistrati), including adjudicating judges (giudici) and law officers working for the public prosecution service (pubblici ministeri), lawyers and notaries.

Adjudicating judges and public prosecution service

The system by which judges and law officers of the prosecution service discharge their judicial functions is set out in the Constitution.

Judges

Justice is administered in the name of the people. Judges are subject only to the law. (Article 101 of the Constitution).

The system by which judges discharge their judicial functions is laid down and regulated by the laws on the judicial system.

No 'extraordinary' or 'special' courts may be set up, only special chambers attached to ordinary courts. The law lays down how and when the public may take part directly in the administration of justice.

Access to the judiciary is through public competition. However, honorary judges may be appointed to carry out all the functions of an individual ordinary judge.

Autonomy and independence

The judiciary is an autonomous body, independent from any other branch of government (Article 104 of the Constitution).

This independence is upheld by the Higher Judicial Council (Consiglio Superiore della Magistratura), a self-governing body charged with judicial appointments, assignment of duties and transfers, promotions and disciplinary measures (Article 105 of the Constitution).

The only difference between judges is the nature of their work.

Their appointment is permanent and they cannot be dismissed or suspended without a decision to that effect by the Higher Judicial Council pursuant to the laws on the judiciary and with the guarantees laid down therein, or with the consent of the judge concerned.

Law officers of the prosecution service

Organisation

The Constitution also enshrines the principles of the independence and autonomy of the public prosecution service (Article 107).

Article 112 lays down the principle of mandatory prosecution of crimes: once the competent public prosecutor has been informed of a criminal offence, they must conduct investigations and submit the results of these investigations to a judge for appraisal, along with the relevant requests. The obligation to institute criminal proceedings helps to ensure the independence of the public prosecution service in carrying out its work and also underpins the equality of all people before the law.

The offices of the public prosecution service are attached to the Court of Cassation, the appeal courts, ordinary courts and juvenile courts.

Role and duties

The prosecution service is involved in all criminal proceedings and acts on behalf of the State. Officers of the prosecution service participate in civil proceedings where this is provided for in law (e.g. in certain family disputes, cases involving person lacking legal capacity, etc.).

Registry and secretariat staff

The court registries and prosecution service secretariats employ administrative staff of various categories (heads of office, officials, court clerks, accounts clerks, deputies, etc.) recruited by exams-based public competitions and acknowledged as public servants subject to a national collective agreement for ministries.

They are employed by the Ministry of Justice's Department of Judicial Organisation, Staff and Services

(Dipartimento dell'organizzazione giudiziaria, del personale e dei servizi) and perform administrative tasks relating to the administration of registers and files and assist the courts and prosecutors' offices in all types of proceedings.

The Ministry of Justice's Directorate-General for Staff and Training (Direzione Generale del Personale e della Formazione) is in charge of their training.

Organisation of the legal profession: lawyers and notaries

Lawyers

A lawyer is an independent professional called upon to represent and assist their clients – who may be an individual, a company or a government body – before a civil, criminal or administrative court.

A lawyer defends clients on the basis of an agreement to represent them and upon payment of a fee.

Attached to each court is a council composed of local lawyers (Consiglio dell'ordine).

At national level there is the National Bar Council (Consiglio Nazionale Forense).

Law No 247 of 31 December 2012 brought in new provisions governing the practice of law.

Notaries

A notary is an independent professional who exercises a public function: their role is to authenticate acts signed in their presence.

The profession of notary is governed by Law No 89 of 16 February 1913 on the rules governing the notarial profession and notarial archives.

The national body is the National Council of Notaries (Consiglio Nazionale del Notariato).

Last update: 18/01/2022

The national language version of this page is maintained by the respective Member State. The translations have been done by the European Commission service. Possible changes introduced in the original by the competent national authority may not be yet reflected in the translations. The European Commission accepts no responsibility or liability whatsoever with regard to any information or data contained or referred to in this document. Please refer to the legal notice to see copyright rules for the Member State responsible for this page.